

To anyone thinking of hiring Joe Waldbaum:

I blurted out the stupidest words I could have ever spoken to a police officer. (“I’ve probably had more to drink than I should have.”) You’ve also made a mistake if you are reading this. Don’t make another one. Attorney Waldbaum is absolutely worth putting all of your trust into.

I got the impression from all the other lawyers I spoke to they were snake-oil salesmen. Joe was the only one who would not promise me the world, treated the situation as gravely and importantly as it actually was and told it to me straight from day one. He began with me as brutally honest and respectfully solemn of the situation that I had gotten myself into. He earned my trust immediately after a single phone conversation.

Joe is a master of his craft -- a very professional, knowledgeable, meticulous lawyer who specializes specifically in DUI defense. He knows how the laws are applied, who judges are, who district attorneys are, what juries need to hear, and every single step that you, personally, have to take to achieve the best outcome available. My strong advice is to be patient. Respect his extreme expertise. Allow him to do his job for you and do not make it harder for him to do so (he will tell you everything he needs of you). I put all of my trust and faith in his professionalism, and I haven’t been able to say the words “thank you“ to him enough to express my gratitude.

He honestly cared about me and what happened to me and went above and beyond any expectations I had. He has a very calming demeanor, and he knows how to lighten the mood a bit when you’re trying to keep your nerves under control. I’m very glad and fortunate to have met him. Just a very, VERY kind man all around.

He corrected all of my mistakes and gave me my life back.

All his potential clients are welcome to call me if they like.
